Experience as Art Director:

Over the last few decades India has gradually seen the emergence of a contemporary Architectural Culture of exceptional caliber. Unfortunately outside the sub-continent much of the major works remain unknown and the names of the practitioners unfamiliar.

Overcoming the drawbacks of working in a third world country and the socio-economic realities of the Indian society, Nitish Roy dares to dream and explore designs and dimensions. He feels it is his privilege to work in India and is convinced we compare with the finest work being produced elsewhere.

A Graduate of the Government Art College, Kolkata, he made his beginnings in a carpenter's workshop. He graduated to a Commercial Artist in an advertising agency doing up friends' homes in his spare time. He participated in Exhibitions and designed pavilions and won prizes too! Hanging around film studios gave him an opportunity to design Film sets.

Delving into the realms of modernity Roy engaged in a combination game with unusual forms colours and concepts. He broke away from reality and manipulated real with the surreal and futuristic in films like:

Kharij – Directed by Mr.Mrinal Sen. (1982)
Mandi – Directed by Mr.Shyam Benegal (1983)
Lekin – Directed by Mr. Gulzar (1991)

FILM PRODUCTIONS:

Today the works of Nitish Roy cover an extraordinarily wide range of Projects- Architecture, Landscapes, Film Art Direction, and Thematic Concepts. Varying in scale from small Private Homes, Film Sets, Film Studios, Museums, Amusement Parks, Samadhis, Restaurants, Health Spas, Botanical Gardens, Art Galleries, he has designed them all. And he has also made 9 films.

He believes progressive technology should be given due importance. No art feels its influence as strongly as Films. And as prevailing technology changes every few decades, the maker must reinvent his films on the values on which it is based. He is constantly looking out at the world of films and testing its frontiers. He does not classify himself under any film theory and believes that innovation and invention to be his forte.

NITISH ROY DESIGN AND MEDIA is a new kind of Film and Communication firm providing a full range of film and production services for its producers.

Since our Company has an Art Direction wing, we have used the technology prevalent in the Film industry and after due R & D Process adapted it for film use.

Our background in Art Direction also helps in film oriented projects like sets, film cities etc., where the film concept cannot be restricted to the conventional and where historical and futuristic veracity is important.

We have a group of trained professional and semi professional persons to supervise the execution of our specialized work. Married to our penchant for man power utilization is a state of art computerization of the complete film making process. This enhances our film making capabilities and enables us to have better perception of our film production results.
